BRIEF ABSTRACT OF LETTERS.

Requests, for reasons given, that the Curator, Govt Museum may be exempted from the operation of certain sections of the Mysore Arms Regulation for the bona-fide purpose of collecting specimens of fauna for the museum.

NOTES AND ORDERS.

A similar recommendation was made in his letter no 31 of 16th Sept 17 from the Supdt, Govt Museum and Govt have applied & declined exemption

In the notes of the file (Pol 53-17 Vol 1-2) it is said that the duties of the curator are said to be purely ministerial, that

There does not appear to be good ground for a general exemption especially considering that the Taxidermist and the Fieldman in that office have been already exempted and that no such exemption is granted in British India.

The Asst Supdt, says that the grounds upon which Govt thought it fit not to exempt the Curator are not apparent from the letter and gives the following reasons for the necessity of exempting the Curator :-

1. At present the Curator can camp out only to collect specimens other than fauna and for collecting such specimens of the latter as may be available in the localities he visits, he will necessarily have to take with him either the Taxidermist or the Fieldman in virtue of their exemption from the Arms Act. This will entail extra cost to Govt as the work which could be done by one is shared by two.

The Asst Supdt further states that if it is considered that by exempting the Curator thus, Govt will be increasing the number, the name Curator may be substituted for either the Taxidermist or the Fieldman

Sir,

Adverting to correspondence ending with your letter No.J.1312/Pol.53-17-2 dated the 10th of October 1917 stating that Government see no necessity to exempt the Curator, Government Museum, from certain provisions of the Arms Regulations, I have the honor to submit as follows:-

2. The grounds upon which Government thought it fit not to exempt the Curator are not apparent from the letter under reference, but, however, I beg to state that experience has shown that either the Taxidermist or the Fieldmen, who are exempted, could not be allowed to camp out by himself without a more responsible official to supervise and check their collection work. Owing to the limited number of hands in the Museum, it is not without much dislocation of work that two out of five hands can be allowed to absent themselves at the same time. These officials besides, can collect only Zoological specimens sometimes without considering the need for them as their responsibilities are limited, and many an opportunity that they may incidentally come across in the locality they visit to collect specimens for the other sections of the Museum will be lost. As at present the Curator can camp out only only to collect specimens other than fauna and for collecting such specimens of the latter as may be available in the locality he visits, he will necessarily have to take with him either the Taxidermist or the Fieldman in virtue of their exemption from the Arms Act. This will entail extra cost to Government as the work which could be done by one is shared by two.

3. Under these circumstances, I beg that Government may be pleased to kindly reconsider their orders and exempt the "Curator, Government Museum" by virtue of his Office from the operation of certain sections of the Mysore Arms Regulation for the bona-fide purpose of collecting specimens of fauna for the Museum. I would add that if it is considered that by exempting the Curator thus, Government will be increasing the number, the name "Curator" may be substituted for either the Taxidermist or the Fieldman.

I have the honor to be,

S i r,

Your most obedient servant,

J.C. Jamadar
